NO-HOURS DORMS FOR UM SOPHOMORE COEDS
IN EFFECT THIS FALL

MISSOULA--

Sophomore coeds at the University of Montana may receive the privilege of living in no-hours dormitories beginning this fall, Andrew C. Cogswell, UM dean of students, has announced.

This privilege previously was extended only to junior and senior women students on the Missoula campus.

Cogswell said sophomore and junior women at the University who are under 21 may live in no-hours dormitories if they have parental permissions and have completed 45 credit hours of study. Sophomore and junior women 21 or over, and senior UM coeds as well, may live in either an hours or no-hours dormitory.

Freshman coeds under 21 at the University must live in an hours residence hall unless excused by Dr. Maurine Clow, associate dean of students. Midnight is closing time for hours residence halls from Sunday through Thursday and at 2 a.m. on weekends.

Doors of no-hours residence halls close at midnight Sunday through Thursday and at 2 a.m. on weekends, but a University coed may return and be admitted at any hour. She must sign out when she leaves the hall after 7 p.m. and sign in by 7 p.m. the following night.

To be permitted the no-hours privilege, a woman must apply to Dr. Clow for eligibility certification and request from the Residence Halls Office a room reservation in one of the no-hours dorms.

Students living in a no-hours dorm will be charged an additional fee because night clerks are needed.
